

Timothy Charlton-Czaplicki

Researcher (PhD student) – Department of Digitalization

Timothy joined the Department of Digitalization as a PhD Fellow in 2020. His research revolves around social learning activities and self-regulated learning strategies on digital labour platforms (“crowdwork”). Using the Life Course Perspective as an analytical lens, he investigates what individual, group, societal and historical factors account for successful learning in the digital workplace. He holds a MSc in Social Science of the Internet from the University of Oxford, a MSc in Digital Humanities from University College London and a BA in Philosophy and Law from LMU Munich. Before joining CBS, he worked as a Data Scientist for the UN World Food Programme.

Personal website: <https://www.cbs.dk/en/research/departments-and-centres/department-of-digitalization/staff/tchdigi>